Law

Construction and Planning Law

In the area of construction and planning law, a large part of our team possesses long-time experience from which our clients take full advantage.

The public and private construction- and planning law area encompasses all aspects before, during, and after the erecting of a structure. This entails not only the securing of the relevant permits, but also allowing the builder to create the desired object and providing legal support to building contractors.

In principle, our clients can obtain complete legal advice during the construction phase. We advise and represent our clients particularly in proceedings under public law before the competent authorities, support them in the conclusion of contracts for work and services, architecture, and planning contracts, as well as in the enforcement of contractual and non-contractual claims.
